INTRODUCTION

September 2003

This is a revised version of AN ANNOTATED LIST OF CURRENTLY PUBLISHED MARITIME PERIODICALS published in 1991 by a team of librarians at the Stephen B. Luce Library as a special project funded by the NYS/UUP Professional Development and Quality of Working Life Committee.

The need for this type of maritime focused periodical list remains the same as it was a decade ago, which was expressed in the preface of the previous publication. Added to this revised edition are the e-mail addresses and web-site URLs of publishers when they are known. Efforts will be made in the future to add more e-mail and web-site addresses as more publishers develop their own electronic access points.

The editor would like to express his deep gratitude to Ms. Pat Weissert and Johanna Devlin for their invaluable administrative assistance and great amount of Microsoft works.

The editor is wholly responsible for any mistakes, omissions and other unintended errors.

PREFACE

The need for an Annotated List of Currently Published Maritime Periodicals (List), classified by subject, has become more apparent to the reference librarians at the Stephen B. Luce Library as the collection developed into a major resource center in the maritime field. There are frequent requests from graduate and undergraduate students as well as researchers for a maritime serials directory, for a list of magazines dealing with maritime transportation research, for the names of journals dealing with shipbuilding, containerization, etc.

The reference staff decided that the compilation of a compact list of maritime related periodicals which included the core of scholarly and trade journal relating to the industry would satisfy many of these user requests. A basic plan was developed for a publication with a target audience of adult library users who needed a guide to maritime industry periodicals.

The reference librarians were able to turn this plan into a project which led to this publication with the support of the college administration and the Head Librarian, Richard Corson. A grant was obtained from the New York State/United University Professions "Professional Development and Quality of Working Life Committee" to develop this reference tool.

The final drafting of the List was carried out during the summer of 1991. I wish to express my genuine appreciation to two colleagues, Filomena Magavero and Richard Corson not only for their encouragement and guidance, but also to Mrs. Magavero for outlining the subject headings and Mr. Richard Corson for proofreading.

Although this project involved several librarians, responsibility for any editorial errors or omissions rests with me as project director and editor.

EXPLANATORY NOTES

SCOPE: The magazines selected are mainly from the United States and United Kingdom, but also include major representative titles from fifteen other nations whose texts are in English. Included in the Annotated List of Currently Published Maritime Periodicals (List) are both trade and scholarly journals considered to be, in the editor's view, representative core research materials in the maritime industry field. In-house publications such as house organs and promotional newsletters, therefore, are excluded except for a few examples. A few magazines which are non-core maritime industry but very useful for maritime related subjects are also included. Magazines dealing with oceanography, boats and boating are prime examples of these categories.

SOURCES: In compiling the List, the following information sources were consulted:

- Information obtained directly from publishers through a survey instrument administered by the editor.
- Periodical Directory of Stephen B. Luce Library, (SUNY Maritime College)
- Ulrich's International Periodical Directory. (Bowker)
- Serials Directory.
- The Standard Periodical Directory. (Oxbridge Communications)

LAYOUT: This List consists of two major sections: 1) alphabetical title list with annotations; 2) classified subject list with titles. By consulting the classified list, one can easily identify a group of magazines under a particular subject. Magazines which deal with more than one subject are listed under the subject headings provided by various publishers in the survey sheets that were received. When a reader wishes to find out more about magazines, he or she can simply turn to the alphabetical title of magazines where one can have access to basic bibliographic information on the title.

CITATION STRUCTURE: The bibliographic elements of each entry include the title of the magazine with the immediate previous title, if any, in parenthesis, frequency of publication, volume number with year of the first publication, index sources where the magazine is indexed, country code, brief annotation, special issues, if any. Excluded are items that are most likely to vary with times e.g., subscription rate, editors, and address of publication. Readers wishing to have this information are referred to the most current edition of the periodical directories cited above.

Title: Title of magazine is given in upper case letters followed by immediate former title in a parenthesis. If title had been changed more than once, only one immediate preceding title is given. Articles at the beginning of magazine titles are omitted.

Frequency: Frequency of magazine is spelled out as Daily, Weekly, Monthly, Bimonthly, with abbreviations 10/Yr. for ten times per year.

Volume number and date of publication:

Volume number and first year of publication date are indicated. In case of uncertain volume number and year, only known volume number and date is indicated using the Periodical Directory of the Stephen B. Luce Library.

Country Code: The following two letter country code is used to indicate country of publication:

AR-Arab Republic of Egypt
BE-Belgium
CN-Canada
GE-Germany
HK-Hong Kong
IN-India
IS-Israel
JA-Japan
KO-Republic of Korea
NE-Netherlands
NO-Norway
UR-USSR
UK-United Kingdom
US-United States

Index Source: Major maritime related index sources are indicated for those who wish to find out which indexes pick up the magazines they are interested in.

Annotation: A brief annotation is made based on descriptions provided by publishers and brief editorial notes given on the title page of each magazine. Tries to convey to readers information on target audience, discipline of particular subjects and characteristics of magazine, if any.

Special Issues: Many magazines publish their special issues which are very useful and convey to readers very important information such as annual review/forecast of industry, buyer's guide, statistical industry summaries, etc. These special issues are indicated at the end of annotations, if any.
